WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

Northern California

- Red Flag Warning is in effect late today through Friday morning for portions of the Sacramento Valley, the northern Coastal Range, the west slopes of the northern Sierra Nevada and adjacent foothills, and much of Shasta County.
 - North to east wind 10 to 20 mph with local gusts 30 to 35 mph; local gusts up to 45 mph over exposed ridges.
 - Overnight recoveries of only 15 to 25 percent across upper slopes and ridges, with 50 to 70 percent recoveries along valley bottoms.
 - Any fires that develop will likely spread rapidly
- Red Flag Warning in effect from noon to Friday night for Kern County mountains and the Sequoia National Forest in Tulare County.

Southern California

- High Wind Warning in effect from Thursday morning to Friday night for portions of Riverside, San Bernardino, and Orange Counties.
 - Strong northeast winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 65 mph will surface in the San Bernardino Mountains and passes, the Inland Empire, and most of Orange County.
 - The strongest winds will be in the Santa Ana Mountains and Foothills at Fremont Canyon and Pleasants Peak where gusts to 65 mph are possible.
- Red Flag Warnings are in effect this morning to Friday night for portions of Los Angeles, Ventura, San Bernardino, Orange, Riverside and San Diego Counties.
- Gusty Santa Ana winds will be possible today into the weekend, bringing warmer and drier conditions to most areas.
 - A weak to moderate Santa Ana wind event is still on target today through Saturday time range, focused over much of Los Angeles and Ventura Counties.
 - Some uncertainty remains as to how strong the winds today and Saturday. Friday still looks like the peak, gusts in the 35 to 50 mph range are expected.

Key Points

11/08/18 - 11/14/18

Thursday - Friday

- Critical fire weather conditions due to gusty winds and low relative humidity. All regions of California will see some areas of these critical conditions; the strongest winds are expected in:
 - East Bay Hills and North Bay Mountains of the SF Bay Area
 - Most of southern California

Saturday

- Winds weakening, but lingering elevated to locally critical fire weather conditions likely.

Sunday - Monday

- Southern California could see a repeat moderate Santa Ana wind event, with winds potentially gusting to 50 mph once again

Tuesday- Wednesday

- Winds decrease again, but elevated fire weather conditions persist. No precipitation expected through Wednesday, except perhaps light showers along the California/Oregon border.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

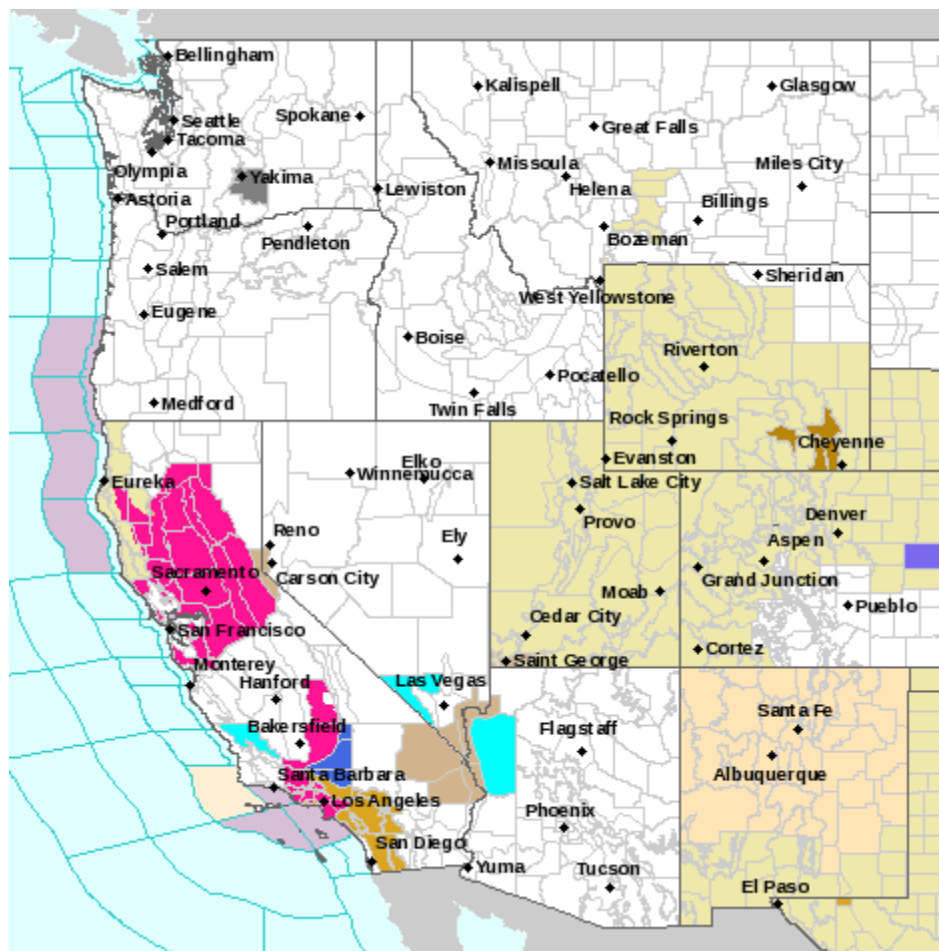

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

-  High Risk of significant fires due to gusty N to E winds/low RH today into early Friday for our driest PSA's ***
-  Local areas of gusty winds/low RH North Coast PSA today ***
-  High Risk of significant fires due to gusty N to E winds/low RH again Sunday Sacramento Valley/Foothills and western Sierra Slopes ***
- High pressure will continue to dominate our weather for another week at least. A few weak weather systems passing by to our north will occasionally weaken the high somewhat.
- Low afternoon RH (5-15%) and poor overnight recovery (less than 25% with some locations less than 15%) will continue into Saturday at least. Windy areas will be the driest.
- Gusty N to E winds will continue into early Friday. Peak gusts of 25-40 mph are expected, with local areas of gusts 45-50 mph this morning, all decreasing somewhat this afternoon. High Risk of Significant Fire in the windy dry areas will continue into Friday morning for these PSA's: Sacramento Valley/Foothills, Mid Coast to Mendocino, western slopes of Northern Sierra, and both Bay Area PSA's. Areas with wind/low RH in the North Coast PSA do not seem quite wide spread enough to warrant High Risk designation there today.
- Gusty N to E winds will return around midnight Sunday through the morning with Peak gusts of 20-30 mph expected. Thus, High Risk of Significant Fire for wind and low RH is also in place for the Sacramento Valley/Foothills and western slopes of Northern Sierra Sunday.
- Winds Friday through Saturday afternoon will be quite light all areas, then again Monday onward well into next week.
- Afternoon temperatures will generally be 5-10 degrees above seasonal normals for the next week with our warmest inland areas mostly in the mid 70s.
- At this time, no rain is expected in the North Ops region over the next 7 days.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- A couple of troughs will drop into the Desert Southwest from Canada through this weekend. A ridge of high pressure off the California Coast will move inland early next week. This ridge will weaken by the middle of next week.
- Northeast winds will increase throughout the day over the mountains and below the canyons and passes of Southern California and peak tonight through Friday morning when winds will be 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph. Winds will decrease Friday afternoon and become light by Saturday morning.
- Another round of northeast winds will increase Sunday and peak Sunday night through Monday morning over the mountains and below the canyons and passes of Southern California. With this event, winds will peak in the 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph range. Winds will decrease Monday afternoon, but locally gusty offshore winds will continue into the middle of next week.
- Minimum humidity will be in the single digits and there will be poor humidity recovery at night through the middle of next week.
- Temperatures will be near normal across the valleys and 5 to 10 degrees below normal across the mountains and deserts through this weekend. Maximum temperatures will be in the upper 40s and 50s across the mountains and 70s to low 80s in the valleys.
- Temperatures will warm to near normal across the mountains and deserts and around 5 degrees above normal in the valleys Monday through the middle of next week.
